

CANCER HELP FOR KIDS

AN estimated 27 children aged up to 13 are told one of their parents has cancer every day in Australia.

In response to that startling statistic, Camp Quality has announced it will begin support programs for children with a parent living with the disease.

Following a worldwide review into the support currently available, conducted by the UNSW and the Sydney Children's Hospital, Camp Quality will begin with books and apps aimed at educating affected children about the condition.